

COHEN APPOINTED TO HARRIS' SENATE POST; RUSSELL ANNOUNCES FOR UNEXPIRED TERM

POOLE TRIAL ENDS; COLEMAN, JUROR, RULED INELIGIBLE

Arguments Waived After Accused Assistant Chief Takes Stand in Own Defense; Board To Consider Case Wednesday.

ABSENTEE MEMBER IS REFUSED BALLOT

Action Puts New Political Slant on Situation;
Trial Follows Beavers'
Application for Pension.

Trial of Assistant Chief of Police
A. Lamar Poole, head of the detective bureau, ended Monday night as attorneys waived arguments and the following developments were recorded in Beavers' fight to oust his assistant.

1. Poole denied in full the charges of insubordination, incompetency and general failure to perform his duties.
His testimony was a high light of the Monday night session.

2. The committee voted to begin consideration of a verdict and a judgment at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning with only four members sitting.

3. Alderman Guy Coleman, member of the committee who missed defense testimony at last Friday night's session, was denied a vote by the committee, which acted under an opinion of City Attorney James L. Mayson that defense objections to his further participation in the trial be sustained.

4. Chief of Police James L. Beavers, complainant against Poole, suddenly filed an application for pension early Monday afternoon after a lengthy conference in the office of Mayor James E. Cox.

5. Sixty-six witnesses, the major portion of whom are Poole's colleagues, testified as to his efficiency, ability and co-operation with the department in the proper conduct of their duties.

6. Although committee members said they are not concerned at the present time about selection of a successor to Chief Beavers, it was reported that Judge John L. Cone, of the second division of the recorder's court, is being considered seriously as a compromise, and that he would be acceptable to staunch supporters of Detective Lieutenant T. O. Sturdivant and those who oppose Sturdivant.

7. Dissension in the police deportment was laid at the door of "tattlers" by Poole, who denied vehemently that he had ever criticized his chief but asserted "I loved him and respected him as a friend and a man."

8. Takes Stand, Denies Charges.
Beavers' charges were denied in the whole by Poole, who took the stand under oath after a short recess. Poole prefaced his testimony with the statement that he was elected to the police in 1899, 23 years ago, and that this is the first time he has been suspended. Poole said that he has filled very post in the department, from superintendency to chief.

9. Poole testified that he made daily reports to Beavers "containing all that was given me by the men." Poole said that he even reported quarters of liquor, convictions and other details.
He said that he had been told by Beavers that he was sorry that Beavers had not received the reports as he wanted them, and told Beavers that if he would tell him how he wanted reports made, he would try to satisfy him.

10. Denying that he remained in his office all of the time, Poole said that he went out whenever it was necessary.

Father and Son Slain Within 6-Week Period

ATTALIA, Ala., April 25.—(AP)—
Six weeks ago, Thomas H. Massie Sr. was shot to death by police and early yesterday a bullet ended the life of Tom Jackson Jr., following a drinking party.

Pat Kidd, 22, at whose home the younger Jackson was killed, surrendered to the sheriff today and was jailed on a charge of murder. Officers were told Jackson was killed by Kidd when they engaged in an argument after spending Saturday drinking.

The elder Jackson was killed in an exchange of fire with Police Chief Keith, who sought to arrest him for questioning in a robbery.

STATE ALIENIST FINAL WITNESS IN MASSIE CASE

Both Sides Rest After Dr.
Catton Testifies and Argues Vigorously With Clarence Darrow.

BY WILLIAM H. EWING.
HONOLULU, April 25.—(AP)— Fighting Lieutenant Thomas H. Massie as a sane, normal southerner aroused to anger and vengeance when he shot Joseph Kahahawai, Dr. Joseph Catton alienist, provided the chief witness today to the prosecution's case against the naval officer and three others accused of the lynching.

Both sides rested and the trial reached the point of closing arguments after Dr. Catton and Dr. Robert Faus, city and county physician, had been called in a last attempt to smash the insanity defense set up in behalf of Massie by his attorneys.

Dr. Catton, San Francisco psychiatrist, was the third mental expert to contend Massie was sane the moment he stood, pistol in hand, before Kahahawai and heard the notice allegedly confess attacking his wife, Mrs. Thalia Massie.

The lieutenant and the defense alienist had asserted his mind had gone blank at that moment and that he did not know what he did immediately thereafter.

Heated clashes, sometimes requiring the interference of Judge Charles S. Davis, marked the questioning of Dr. Catton by Clarence Darrow, aged leader of the defense.

Physician for Darrow.
At the close of the day's brief session, it was announced that due to the strain imposed upon the defense attorney by the intense heat and the infirmities of his age, Darrow will be attended in court tomorrow by Dr.
Faus. The appointment of a physician was made by the court at Darrow's request.

Testifying only from examination of the record—Darrow had refused to let the prosecution alienist examine him on the stand by Massie. The detail of his narrative moved Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, and one of the loudest sobbing.
He referred to the plotting by Massie, Mrs. Fortescue, and the other defendants, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, and then went into his opinion.

Reminding the jury that Massie was born in Kentucky, Dr. Catton, whose testimony helped to send Mrs.
Winnie Russell to the Arizona penitentiary for the murder of two women, said the naval officer's behavior of the tragedy was not the irresponsible act of an insane person, but the deliberate step of the young south-erner to avenge his wife's honor.

The witness said he found no evidence in the record that Massie was insane; and was sane enough to prepare his defense. He said that prior to the attack on Mrs. Massie last September Massie was an average, sane person, and that the naval officer's subsequent conduct was a perfectly normal and natural reaction.

"Massie's instincts to anger and to fight were brought into play," said the witness. "He took steps to see that he was not provoked."

REP. LA GUARDIA NORBECK'S TRUMP IN STOCK INQUIRY

New Yorker Is Revealed
as 'Surprise' Witness in Senate's Extended 'Bear
Hunt' in Capital.

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON.
WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—
The mystery behind which Chairman Norbeck, of the senate banking committee, today hid the identity of the surprise witness who is to appear tomorrow at the stock market inquiry was pushed aside tonight to reveal the stocky figure of Representative La-Guardia, republican, New York.

As the committee resumes its investigation of the stock market, it will be the colorful New Yorker who will be called to supply the "big surprise" which Senator Norbeck promised from the mysterious witness.

With that riddle solved, however,
another entered the situation.
LaGuardia recently sent a large portfolio of documents to the police headquarters for safe-keeping. He said they were from New York, and certain persons were anxious to get their hands on them.

He refused tonight to disclose whether these would compose the ammunition to be aimed tomorrow at stock market activities which he has attacked in the past.

Whether he would take these before the committee, he replied with a joking query of his own, and then added:
"But you might keep your eye out in the morning."

Senator Norbeck, who changed his plans suddenly in announcing resumption of the investigation tomorrow instead of Wednesday, continued to maintain his mysterious silence regarding the program and declined to confirm or deny that LaGuardia was his surprise. So did Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, but it was learned authoritatively that the New Yorker is to be the day's premier witness.

"I can't talk about it now," the big,
good-natured South Dakota republican said in announcing the altered plans.
"But he will give you something to write about tomorrow."

Almohad government "an economic crime."

The Illinois democrat made this assertion in an interview. A little later chairman Lathrop said he would submit the bill tomorrow after two months' study depends largely on whether the plan approved today by the rules committee is adopted by the house.

This would limit general debate to one hour, permit the offering of no more than four amendments to each of the bill's ten titles and restrict discussion of amendments of 10 minutes for each proposed change.

Should the opposition defeat the efforts of democratic and republican leaders to adopt this procedure, the entire bill would be thrown open to unlimited amendment.

Factional leaders plan to unite their divergent forces for a big push against the bill tomorrow morning. The management of the house expressed gratification at the results, which it was said, surpassed all expectations.

Rogers, Inc., prefaced the big exhibit with an exclusive 12-page sec-

Bridge Ace Weds Net Champ Week From Day of Meeting

MR. AND MRS. OSWALD JACOBY.

DALLAS, Texas, April 25.—(AP)— Oswald Jacoby, of New York, nationally known contract bridge expert, married Miss Mary Zita McHale, Dallas tennis champion, at Sacred Heart cathedral this afternoon. The ceremony climaxed a romance which began last Monday on a Dallas tennis court.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. McHale, of Dallas, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Helen Wilson, Reinhard A. Hon-us Jr., of New York city, who arrived in Dallas by airplane Saturday attended Jacoby.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for New York city, where they will make their home. Because of the lack of time, they requested that any entertaining planned for them be dispensed with.

ECONOMY PLANS HANG ON RULES SOUTHERN STORMS CLAIM SIX LIVES

Proponents of Omnibus
Bill Will Seek Special Procedure on Measure.

BY ECHL B. DICKSON.
WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—
Under unusual procedure and in the face of bitter factional opposition, party leaders will seek Wednesday to force through the house the $200,000,000 omnibus reinforcement bill as a simpler of the $200,000,000 legislative measure.

Party leaders began breaking up today as leaders of the anti-federalist coalition movement began to form a coalition in a desperate effort to block the draft of party chieftains for procedure they hope will secure passage of the economy measure virtually intact.

The success or failure of the huge rearmament bill, which will be introduced tomorrow, will depend largely on whether the plan approved today by the rules committee is adopted by the house.

This would limit general debate to
one hour, permit the offering of no
more than four amendments to each of the bill's ten titles and restrict discussion of amendments of 10 minutes for each proposed change.

ROOSEVELT, SMITH CONFIDENT ON EVE OF 'CRUCIAL' VOTE

Pennsylvania and Massachusetts Today Will Pass on Al's Challenge to Governor's March.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.
WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—
The long-awaited test on Alfred E.
Smith's challenge of Franklin D.
Roosevelt's bid for the democratic presidential nomination tonight was in the hands of Massachusetts and Pennsylvania voters.

With 112 delegate votes to the national convention at stake in the two eastern primaries tomorrow—36 in Massachusetts and 76 in Pen-sylvania—partisans of the two New Yorkers brought their furious campaigns to a close with expressions of confidence.

Smith chieftains predicted their principal gains would come from Massachusetts, which gave the former New York governor its electoral vote in 1928. Roosevelt supporters looked to the Keystone state to provide the biggest boost in his delegate total—now 207—and to end the "stop-Roosevelt" movement.

In addition to the 112 delegates to be chosen in these two states, the democrats also will name six in a primary tomorrow in far-off Alaska.
The Roosevelt camp long has forecast victory there.

Affording less popular interest, the republicans tomorrow will select 119 delegates in the primaries and conventions—34 in Massachusetts, 75 in Pennsylvania, two in Alaska, and four each in Arkansas and South Carolina.

President Hoover, who has 423 delegates pledged and claimed for him to date, faces little opposition in the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania voting. A state of delegates pledged to his renomination is opposed in only three district contests in the Bay state.

Virtually all of Pennsylvania's 75 emissaries to Chicago are expected to be friendly to the president and controlled by William S. Vare, who turned the tide for Hoover at the Kansas City convention in 1928.

There will be no preference balloting in Massachusetts on either side.
In addition to having delegates in the field in Pennsylvania, Smith and Roosevelt are candidates for the presidency.

Husband Chooses Jail To Reunion With Wife

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 25.
(AP)—Refusing reconciliation with his wife as the condition for remission of a three-month jail sentence, Ellis Stevens, 27, who claimed connection with British nobility, went to jail today, though his wife had come from Albemarle, N. C., to intercede for him and stood ready to forgive his delinquencies.

Stevens was arrested here recently with Mrs. Olga Runyon, wife of Dr. Kelso H. Runyon, a dentist in Elkhart, Ind., in a house where they had been living together for several weeks.

EXPECTED ACTION FOCUSES INTEREST ON PLANS OF CRISP

Governor To Meet Appointee Today in Richmond and Deliver Commission; Cohen To Be Sworn in Wednesday.

CRISP TO "PONDER"
FOR SEVERAL DAYS

Representative Going to Washington To Discuss Situation With Wife.
Cohen "Complimented."

BY R. E. POWELL.

Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. at 11 o'clock Monday morning named Major John S. Cohen, democratic national committeeman, to succeed the late Senator William J. Harris until a successor, named in the general election in November, takes office, and simultaneously announced that he would enter the September primaries for the unexpired term.

Both the governor's selection of a temporary successor to Senator Harris and his decision to relinquish the usual endorsement term as governor in November, the senate himself were forced in The Constitution Sunday morning.

Major Cohen, who was in New York after a meeting of newspaper publishers when S. Cohen appeared in Richmond, will meet Governor Russell in Richmond this morning and receive his commission. He probably will be sworn in as a member of the senate until Wednesday, Governor Russell left Atlanta Monday night to attend the annual convention of governors in the Virginia capital.

Governor Russell made it definite in his statement of candidacy that he would not give up his post as governor if successful in his senatorial campaign until he had finished his full term as state executive. If the constitutional amendment to be voted on in November is passed, Russell will relinquish the governorship early in January, instead of in June.

Interest Shifts to Crisp.
With the dual announcement of the Cohen appointment and the Russell candidacy, political interest shifted quickly to the intention of Representaative Charles R. Crisp, acting chairman of the house ways and means committee, in congress. In a brief statement made at Americus after he had been informed of the Cohen appointment, Crisp said:

"I will ponder the situation and above all, I want to discuss it with my wife. Her life is bound up with mine in a full and complete understanding and I want her counsel and advice. I am going to Washington tomorrow and discuss it with Mrs.
Crisp and shall have a statement about the situation after several days."

Crisp, who was in New York at Americus this morning for Macon and after conferring with friends there will come to Atlanta. He will leave here at 7 o'clock tonight and arrive in Washington Wednesday.

"Great Compliment," Says Cohen.
"Notified in New York of his appointment," Crisp Cohen said.
"It is a very great compliment and a very great responsibility."

Governors Honor Memory Of Monroe and Jefferson

Hoover and Roosevelt May Meet at National Session of State Executives in Virginia Capital

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 25.—(AP)—Governors of 24 states came here today to pay tribute to James Monroe, author of the Monroe Doctrine, and to Thomas Jefferson, his friend and neighbor, author of the Declaration of Independence and founder of the University of Virginia.

At Ash Lawn, for 26 years the home of President Monroe, the governors heard Claude G. Bowers, New York author, praise Monroe as the stout champion of the constitutional rights and sovereign dignity of the states. The occasion was the dedication of the Piccirilli statue of Monroe originally carved for the Venezuelan government before the fall of the Czarist regime.

"Jefferson had given us a declaration of national independence; it was reserved for Monroe to issue the declaration of independence for the entire western world," Mr. Bowers said in praising the Monroe Doctrine. "The hopes and plans of the Metetricks and Talliandis crumbled like a house of cards before the bugle blast of independence sounded by James Monroe."

After a brief visit to Monticello, home of Jefferson, and a reception at the University of Virginia, the governors were guests at a banquet before returning to Richmond.

Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, who welcomed the governors at Monticello, told them there can be no profitable market "until we re-establish our foreign markets."

He said that "half of the people of the world have and use silver money alone," and added that "we have negligently permitted their money to be beaten down in value as compared with our gold, that they cannot longer purchase our products."

"The inexcusable, unnecessary and almost criminal causes for this silver depression," he continued, "can be easily eliminated through the action of an intergovernmental conference. Trade barriers can be removed through reciprocal agreements and commerce restored."

When this has been accomplished, the senator said, "our purchasing power will return, industry will prosper, unemployment will cease, confidence will be re-established and government aid will no longer be necessary."

The announcement today that President Hoover would address the governors Wednesday afternoon on economy and taxation and the relationship between the federal and state governments added interest to the conference. Although politics will not be brought into the subjects for discussion, the coming of the president will make possible a meeting with the leading candidate for the democratic nomination, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York. Other states mentioned for the democratic nomination for the presidency will be present, including Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland; Governor George White, of Ohio, and former Governor Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia.

Governor Dan Turner, of Iowa, opened the conference sessions at Richmond today by advocating that the federal reserve banks aid in stabilizing the farm dollar and also recognize debts secured by land as subject to redemptio. Tax revision was urged as necessary in government along with economy to cause those able to pay to help support the government. He closed governmental extravagance and the need for tax re-

HEFLIN TO SPEAK AGAIN IN SENATE

Alabamian Wins Right to 'Last Word' on Contest After Close Vote.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—By a dramatic roll call only decided by a last-second switch of a vote, former Senator J. Thomas Hefflin today was granted the privilege of speaking once more in the senate.

His familiar voice will be raised again in the chamber in support of his effort to unseat Senator John H. Bankhead, who beat him in 1930 after Hefflin had been barred from the democratic primary because he refused to support Al Smith for president.

Under a two-hour time limitation, the bulky, oratorical Hefflin is to take the floor tomorrow before crowded galleries.

Resplendent in his long-tailed black coat and white waistcoat edged with black, Hefflin sat in the back of the chamber as the senate voted on a motion by Senator Trammell, democrat, Florida, to grant him the floor.

At the end of a call of the roll, there were eight more votes against the motion than there were for it. The first 10 votes were against him.

Then Hefflin votes began pouring in. A call of absentees as they came into the chamber produced a rapid succession of ballots in favor of granting him the right to speak.

When the last vote was called the result was a 32-to-32 tie.

The deadlock was broken and the issue decided by Senator Kean, republican, New Jersey, who switched his vote from "nay" to "yea."

Hefflin beamed, and amid the congratulations of his supporters, walked from the chamber to prepare what vision with centralization of government and lawlessness as major enemies of democracy.

Governor A. Max Gardner, of North Carolina, told of the "revolutionary experiment" in his state in 1931, when 45,000 miles of county roads were taken over for state maintenance, and a six months' school term supported by the state. He said that in the nine months since the program became effective both services had the most satisfactory standards in the history of the state.

All of the governors participated in the unveiling, each pulling a red, white and blue ribbon.

Governor Pollard introduced Governor Ross, descendant of Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Jay W. Johns, of Pittsburgh, restorers of Ash Lawn, and Antillio Piccirilli, the sculptor.

In introducing Mr. Bowers to one of the largest crowds ever gathered at Ash Lawn, Governor Pollard said that history "has never done justice to James Monroe."

Georgia's New Senator

Major John S. Cohen, who succeeds the late Senator W. J. Harris.

he hopes will be the most memorable of all the speeches he made in his years in the senate.

The issue was decided with galleries crowded and with most of the Alabama congressional delegation and other members of the house clustered in the back of the chamber.

It followed the outspoken opposition of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, democratic leader; Senator Borah, Senator Norris, and Senator McNary, the assistant republican leader. Consequently, it came as a surprise.

The issue was decided by a combination of 23 republicans, nine democrats and the one farmer-labor senator.

U. S. BATTLES APPEAL IN CAPONE'S BEHALF

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—The government today vigorously opposed Al Capone's last desperate attempt to find a legal escape from his 11-year prison sentence.

The gang leader had asked the supreme court to review his conviction for evading income tax payments. Solicitor-General Thacher filed a brief in reply today saying Capone had no right to have his case reopened.

The court's answer to Capone's plea probably will come next Monday. Ralph Capone, Al's brother, and other members associated with him in profitable years of crime have been uniformly unsuccessful in their attempts to get reviews.

From all that could be told by the dry legal recital filed by Capone's attorneys, Michael J. Ahern and Albert Fink, the case might simply be that of a man, otherwise law abiding, who attempted to evade payment of his income taxes.

A letter mailed to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh from Downingtown, Pa., and offering to give information as to the whereabouts of the famous flyer's son, sent two New Jersey state police officials there to question a man and woman today. It was declared late tonight that the pair had no connection with the case.

Meanwhile, John Hughes Curtis, one of three Norfolk, Va., men seen upon return of the child, was absent from his home on another of numerous trips he has made in connection with the case. The yacht Marion also was absent and it was believed he had boarded it.

Through motion pictures of a baby left in a nursery at San Jose, Cal., it was established that the child was not the missing Lindbergh baby. Colonel Schwarzkopf said both the information regarding the baby and the film was "received in confidence. We cannot reveal either the name or address or the source of our information."

CURTIS IS REPORTED ON MYSTERIOUS CRUISE NORFOLK, Va., April 25.—(UP)—The motor yacht Marion, present center of the Norfolk negotiations with men claiming to be the kidnappers of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was cruising somewhere off Norfolk today with John Hughes Curtis and Edwin B. Bruce as guest passengers.

After a brief stay at Little Creek, during which Curtis went to his home to rest and see his sick wife, the Marion puffed out into the bay during the night from pine-sheltered Little Creek, 10 miles down from the city.

There was nothing but conjecture regarding the activities of Curtis, chief of the Norfolk negotiators, and Bruce, retired banker of Elmira, N. Y., a sort of mystery man in the negotiations.

Obviously, it seemed there were two possibilities in Curtis' mind—first, that he might establish touch with the self-assured kidnappers on the water; secondly, that he might even hope at some early time to get the kidnapped baby.

Further, among the bills paid out by the senate disbursing officer is one to Acme Plating and Manufacturing Company for nickel plating five bottle openers for cloak rooms at 50 cents each, total $2.50. It would be lowering the senatorial standard of living to permit a senator to have his White Rock opened with an opener from which the nickel plating had worn off.

Sensors all use blotters when signing letters at their desks in the senate chamber. But each senator's desk is equipped with a little box containing fine sand used years ago for blotting. So last year the senate spent $41.83 plus freight to have a consignment of the little glass boxes shipped from the factory.

In 1930 the senate ushered in the Christmas season by ordering on De-

VINEYARDISTS ASK DRY LAW REVISION

Reversal of Governmental Enforcement Policies Is Charged by Executive

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—(AP) Revision of the 18th amendment to permit the sale of naturally fermented beverages was advocated here today as a policy of the California Vineyardists' Association by Donald D. Conn, its managing director.

In a report summarizing his administration for the last five years, Conn charged that a reversal of governmental prohibition enforcement policies threatened disaster to the grape industry and made legalization of wine-making imperative.

He charged that for 12 years the government, by liberal rulings and interpretations of the Volstead act, "approved and assisted the growing and sale of juice grapes for home wine-making" only to "betray" the grape growers later by a "complete reversal" of prohibition enforcement policy.

"Fruit Industries, Ltd.," he said, "... had its genesis as a result of conferences between the department of justice, the treasury and the department of agriculture in Washington. Its program was fully understood from the beginning."

UKIAH CONCERN PAYS $700 IN "TEST" CASE

KANSAS CITY, April 25.—(AP)—The Ukiah Grape Products Company, Inc., of New York, paid a $700 fine in federal court here November 19, 1931, on conviction of violation of the national prohibition act.

Attorneys termed trial of the company on charges of possessing and selling a grape concentrate a test case.

Judge Merrill E. Otis held the product of the Ukiah company was illegal and that both the company and its Kansas City branch manager, A. E. Burnett, were guilty.

By agreement of counsel he had heard the evidence without a jury. Defense attorneys asserted the company was not at fault in that its product contained less than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol by volume at the time of its sale to consumers.

CONN STATEMENT DRAWS PROTESTS FROM CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—Organized anti-prohibitionists of congress today looked with considerable skepticism on the proposal by Donald D. Conn, director of the California Vineyardists' Association, that the 18th amendment be modified to permit the sale of naturally fermented beverages.

Meanwhile, Secretary Hyde and the office of Attorney-General Mitchell denied a statement by Conn that Fruit Industries, Ltd., "had its genesis as a result of conferences between the department of justice, the treasury and the department of agriculture in Washington."

Chairman Stone, however, said the farm board did not "lose a penny" to Fruit Industries "until it had been assured by the department of justice, the treasury and the prohibition bureau that the grape concentrate business of that company was perfectly legal."

Charles M. Hay, of St. Louis, dry democratic candidate for the senate from Missouri in 1928, meanwhile today said he would favor resubmission of the eighteen amendment if congress at the same time presented a suitable alternative safeguarding against return of the saloon or unregulated liquor traffic.

In a speech before the National Woman's Democratic Club, Hay reaffirmed his dry stand, but said it must be realized "that the success of any policy depends upon its support by public opinion."

Women's Christian Temperance Union headquarters, in a statement here today, said results in the republican primary in Illinois "give the G. O. P. leaders no incentive to move into the wet camp."

The six leading offices on the state ticket were won by four dries, one damp and Len Small, unsatisfactory either as a wet or a dry," said the statement.

member 18 from the Lake Erie Chemical Company two gas riot pistols at $50 each and two dozen gas riot pistol shells at $40 a dozen, presumably to be used on any groups of the unemployed who became too persistent in their appeals for help from congress.

One secret of getting ahead

You need good health to succeed. Many a man has seen his chances go because he was too sick to keep pace with competition. Often his poor health was due to constipation.

This ailment frequently causes headaches, loss of energy, sleeplessness. It takes the "punch" out of your day's work.

Try eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Science shows this delicious cereal supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

2 SEEK PREFERENCE IN SIXTH WARD RACE

The third city-wide race in the May 25 primary had only two candidates as entrance lists were closed Monday afternoon leaving W. W. Waits and Dr. John White qualified for the contest of alderman from the sixth ward. E. G. Pope, who qualified as councilman from the seventh ward, and W. Paul Carpenter, whose friends placed him in the race for council from the ninth ward, have left the field. Pope quit because of business connections and Carpenter said he could not make the race at this time.

TWO KILLED, TWO HURT AS TRUCK HITS AUTO

Six-Year-Old Daughter of Caroliner Dies in Crash Near Macon.

MACON, Ga., April 25.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and two others critically injured when a fruit truck collided with their automobile near Henderson today.

Corporal William T. Mallory, of the Headquarters Company, Eighth Infantry, stationed at Fort Moultrie, died of injuries received in the accident. His five-year-old daughter was killed instantly.

Corporal and Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Carrie Screws, 42, of Columbus, mother of Mrs. Mallory, were brought to the Macon hospital in an ambulance from Unadilla. The two women were unconscious tonight. The exact time of the crash was not immediately learned.

Corporal and Mrs. Mallory, the child and Mrs. Screws were returning from Adrian, Ga., where they attended the funeral at noon today of the soldier's father, when the accident happened.

Witnesses said Corporal Mallory was driving the car on the highway to Columbus, where he had been taking part in the spring maneuvers of the United States Infantry school, when the truck sped out of a crossing highway. The name of the driver of the truck was not known.

The soldier's car, a light coupe, was demolished and the passengers thrown out when the truck hit its side. The truck driven was not injured.

Corporal Mallory was given a leave of absence several days ago to visit his father, who was ill. The soldier applied Saturday for an extension of his pass and was given three days more by Captain J. F. Decker, commander of his company, who is on field duty at Fort Benning. Corporal Mallory is a veteran of the World War.

Arthur Cheatham, of Macon, service officer of the Joseph N. Neel Jr. post of the American Legion, talked to Captain Decker by telephone from the field at Fort Benning after he learned of the accident. He said he learned Corporal Mallory's father died Sunday, and the funeral was held in Adrian today. Corporal Mallory and the party left soon afterwards for the return to the infantry school. His leave was to expire at 6 o'clock tonight.

A medical officer will be sent here from Fort Benning Tuesday, and the injured persons will be cared for in the Macon hospital in the meantime. It was said. Relatives of Corporal Mallory in Adrian were informed of the accident and were expected in Macon late tonight.

Corporal Mallory had a "soldier's honor card" with him, Mr. Cheatham said.

that his honor and his wife's honor were restored.

The witness asserted that after the mistrial of Kahahawai and four others accused of the attack, Massie became convinced that his theory of the assault was "not the proper theory."

Assailed by Darrow.
"I move to strike that out," said Darrow. "This California doctor doesn't know any more about the popular theory than I do."

Judge Davis overruled Darrow and Dr. Catton said Massie's reaction was one of anger and fight, and those of a sane, normal man. He turned to the racially mixed jury and spoke with emphasis.

"I don't know," said Darrow. "Why can't he sit in his chair and talk like any other man? He doesn't have to emphasize his remarks. That isn't honest testimony."

"Has he any right to question my honesty?" Dr. Catton flared, turning to Judge Davis.

"I didn't say you were not honest," Darrow retorted.

"Well, I resent it," said Dr. Catton. "All right, then, resent it," Darrow growled.

Referring to defense alienists' testimony that Massie had "chemical insanity," Dr. Catton said he found no evidence of such, and in fact, that he "never heard of chemical insanity."

"If he doesn't know what chemical insanity is," Darrow interrupted, "how does he know whether there is evidence of it here or not?"

Dr. Catton didn't answer that and the court ordered their side remarks disregarded.

Imagine a car that rides so smoothly that, in it, you actually seem to soar along—with scarcely an indication that the car is in contact with the ground! And imagine a car so flexible—so instantly obedient to every control—that driving it on the longest journey is play of the most joyous sort! No one, we believe, could know these new Cadillacs, without a great urge to their ownership. And there is absolute proof of this statement—for the great change to Cadillac is one of the most significant motor car trends in America today. In fact, of all the people who have purchased cars since the first of the year in the Cadillac-LaSalle price group—more than two out of every five have settled their choice upon Cadillac and LaSalle! Truck Driver Hurt
In Crossing Wreck

Blinded by the rain, Jack Brashear, about 21, of 735 Catherine street, was injured Monday night when the three-ton truck he was driving was struck by the Southland, Central of Georgia passenger train, at the Avon avenue crossing near Oakland City, according to reports. Brashear was carried to the Crawford W. Long hospital, where his injuries were not thought to be serious.

Brashear, who was employed by the Montgomery Motor Express Company, of 554 Stewart avenue, owners of the huge highway express truck, was on his way to Montgomery, Ala., with a load of furniture and refrigerators, it was said. He drove on to the tracks directly into the path of the south-bound train. His truck was demolished.

Passengers and trainmen labored for nearly an hour to remove Brashear from the wreckage. The engineer of the train was Bill Shafer, of Macon.

'More Rain Tuesday,' Is Official Forecast

More rain, with little or no change in the temperature from that of Monday, is slated for Atlanta today, according to C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist. However, the rain will not be as heavy today as that of Monday, he said.

Shortly after noon Monday one of the heaviest rains ever to be recorded here fell in Atlanta and brought 25 of an inch of rain in five minutes. A wind of about 30 miles per hour in velocity accompanied the shower. This brought the total rainfall for the day to .40 of an inch. The temperature Monday ranged between 65 and 81 degrees, and this will be predicted today, according to Von Herrmann.

Now it is planned to pay the more than 70,000 government employees in the District of Columbia in cash to save clerical expense as well as paper and ink.

ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 26, 1932.

THE LINE OF DEMARCATION.

News reports of Monday clearly reveal the line of demarcation between those who endorse and those who criticize the candidacy of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt for the democratic presidential nomination.

Jesse Isador Straus, executive of a great retail company which has done much toward reducing the cost of living for the masses of the people, announces the formation of a nation-wide business and professional league to forward the Roosevelt candidacy.

This outstanding representative of the type of American businessmen who conduct their great concerns along lines calculated to serve rather than bleed the people, is surprised that there is need for the "emphasis that has been placed upon the necessity for party harmony" in view of the "confidence the citizens of every state in the union have in the ability of Governor Roosevelt to maintain this party harmony."

It is significant that the class of leaders represented by Mr. Straus have taken no part or parcel in the now collapsed "Stop Roosevelt" movement. Rather, it has drawn what strength it has been able to muster from such men as Thomas L. Chadbourne, New York attorney, and author of the world sugar trust plan, who now solemnly warns the democrats that "the nomination of Roosevelt would not only cost the democratic party an opportunity for victory, but also would alienate 'thoughtful and independent-minded democrats.'"

Evidently there are not many of Mr. Chadbourne's particular brand of "thoughtful and independent-minded democrats" in New Hampshire, Minnesota, Iowa, Georgia and the other states which have given such overwhelming endorsement to Roosevelt.

The truth of the situation is that the whole-hearted approval of the record and ability of Roosevelt by the thinking and progressive democrats of the country is largely responsible for the tremendous strength developed by the New York governor in every section of the country.

The amazingly unpolitic statement of this latest spokesman for the "Stop Roosevelt" movement reveals the desperation of the small, reactionary group which, with aid from outside the party, is responsible for it.

The trouble with the democratic party is that too often it hangs out the sign, "Business suspended during alterations."

THE GERMAN DIET RESULTS.

The gains made by the Hitler forces in the diet elections held in five German states coming so soon after their failure to register the expected strength in the presidential election, emphasizes the sentimental hold of President Hindenburg on the people of the nation.

The aged, although still physically sound and mentally alert, chief executive typifies to an unusual degree the German ideals of manhood and leadership. The size of the vote given can also be attributed to the fact that under the German constitution presidential authority is limited, thus making it easy for the voters to continue in office a picturesque figure and reserve for local and national diet elections the full expression of their political views.

In four of the five states the fascists now become the strongest political party, although in none of them did they secure enough diet seats to give them a clear majority over all other parties. Their most sensational gain was in Prussia, where they increased their strength from 9 to 162 seats, the German nations, people's and state's parties suffering crushing defeats.

In the presidential poll on March 13, the Prussian electoral districts, by far the largest and most important in the country, gave Hitler 6,840,000 votes. This figure was increased to 8,008,000 votes by the candidates in the diet elections a month later. One million of this increase came from the communists who voted 3,720,000 strong in March, but whose candidates received only 2,820,000 in Sunday's balloting.

The election results will not change the state government in Hamburg, but new coalition governments will probably result in the other states.

Even more sweeping gains were made by the nazis in the elections held in Austria, so it appears that in the light of Sunday's results the set-back received by Hitler in the recent presidential election cannot be taken as an indication of lessening fascist strength.

We wish the meek would hurry up and inherit the earth—the un-meek are making such a mess of it.

COHEN SUCCEEDS HARRIS.

Appointment by Governor Russell of Major John S. Cohen to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Harris pays a merited honor to a prominent Georgian well equipped by ability and familiarity with national problems to discharge the duties of this high office.

As democratic national committeeman from Georgia and editor of the Atlanta Journal, Major Cohen has exhibited a grasp of affairs that has won for him recognition not only in Georgia, but throughout the country.

His career has been an active and varied one, although he has devoted practically his entire life to the newspaper business. Entering the United States Naval Academy in 1885, the lure of printer's ink caused him to resign the following year to accept a position with the Augusta Chronicle.

After serving his apprenticeship on that paper in the profession which he was in later years to follow so brilliantly, he spent a year in Mexico with Captain William G. Raoul, of Georgia, builder of the Mexican National railroad. He then went to New York, where he spent a year as a member of the news staff of the World, coming back to Georgia in 1890 to begin the long association with the Atlanta Journal, which saw him successively named as political writer, Washington correspondent, chief editorial writer, managing editor and president and editor, the position he now holds.

His characteristic unwillingness to be on the sidelines when others were fighting was evidenced during the Spanish-American war, when after going as a news correspondent to Cuba with Admiral Evans he returned to America to join the army. He went back to Cuba as a lieutenant in the Third Georgia Infantry, later becoming captain and then major.

Major Cohen inherits his fighting spirit from his father, Philip Lawrence Cohen, who was a soldier in the Confederate army, and his maternal grandfather, Major General Ambrose Ransom Wright, a Confederate commander. He was born in Augusta.

Mrs. Cohen was formerly Miss Julia Lowry Clarke, of Atlanta, a gracious southern woman, who will add to the charm of the senatorial circle in Washington.

Major Cohen will carry to the senate a virility and forcefulness which will add strength to the democratic ranks in that body. His appointment is a justified reward for long and earnest party service.

We could get along better with less argument about the cause of the existing bear market and more intelligent effort to remedy the situation.

A man in New York is sent to jail for two days because he pulled an elephant's tail. A sock on the nose would probably have given him a life sentence.

The depression has undoubtedly reduced a great many people to dire straits, but somehow we can't muster up a lot of sympathy for those who are down to their last million.

How unfortunate that the New York columnist who sees all, knows all and tells all can't be of some real service by discovering the whereabouts of the Lindbergh baby?

The London justice who refused to allow "spirits" to talk evidently thought any such procedure would be too spirited for the somber dignity of a British court.

The French concern which is paying its dividends in beer evidently believes in keeping its fluid resources in circulation.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Population Of U. S. S. R.

Statistics show that the population of the Union of Soviet Republics, amounting to 167 millions, races and tribes, increases every year by three millions and a half. This is the highest birthrate in the world. If the bolshevik government had no other problem but that one, this tremendous increase of population, it would have its hands full already.

The great problem over there is two-fold: First of all, there is the problem Russia, and the second one is the building of the socialist state. The first part seldom seems taken into account: Russia, covering one-fifth of the entire habitable land, a land of vast contrasts. Just think of the millions of Mohammedans and on the other hand the discovery of a tribe of nomads which has never heard that the Great War had been fought. A land stretching from Polish steppes to the Japanese sea and from the colorless tundra of the Arctic to the polar regions on top of Siberia. To administer such a territory alone is a gigantic, almost super-human task.

The Paris Opera.

Six years residence in the immediate neighborhood of the Paris opera house that no visiting American ever passes through the French capital without attending at least one performance. If the Parisians themselves, or even a hundredth part of them, had shown as much interest in their opera, it wouldn't be where it is today. It is to say, artistically at zero and financially below that point.

The only people who managed to have the opera pay for itself were the monarchs. Napoleon ordered the marshals, a couple of dozen of them, to buy a box at the opera and pay heavily for them. The later kings did the same thing. The democratic republic could not compel anybody and the opera was kept up by private donations.

The last great private donor, Jacques Rouché, has just announced his intention to stop giving. This means the end, for it does not seem that the French government will be able to make any changes in the financial picture that he was about to direct.

"We shall sue Josef von Sternberg immediately to the full extent of our rights in law and equity," says B. P. Schuyler, Paramount executive.

"Mr. von Sternberg has made a clean-cut exit. He has been quoted as saying that it is a question of whether a director should have to make a picture of a story he doesn't like."

"We, therefore, have had the test forced upon us to determine whether employees drawing large sums weekly are, in fact, employees or can do as they please."

"If we believe that in these trying times in the industry, and in the whole world's economic structure, we should find a new direction, we should find it."

Wallace, one of our finest directors, has been assigned to direct Miss Dietrich in a picture, and she shall be notified accordingly.

"If I meet with the president under Mr. Wallace's direction, we shall immediately take all legal steps to protect our full rights."

Naturally Hollywood is intensely interested in the outcome of this dispute, the settlement of which without doubt will set a precedent for future temperamental flare-ups.

Arguments pro and con are being offered, with most people betting that it will be a studio victory this time.

"Why not have a sliding wage scale," says a certain executive, "so that the actors who demand enormous salaries when they achieve popularity shall receive proportionately smaller pay checks when they fail to make good in a picture?"

Which is an idea in these trying times. But one that may be written into contracts as a leveling influence for artists who sometimes get to think themselves indispensable to the studio.

Just to add more trouble to the Paramount situation, it is rumored that Carole Lombard has asserted that she will not appear in "Hot Saturday" saying she doesn't like it and won't appear in it.

Perhaps this story is somewhat exaggerated, as it doesn't seem a wise thing for one so newly promoted to big parts to say, especially when her studio has done so much toward building up her popularity.

Dr. Dietrich-von Sternberg argument has been brought to a head, we will see about Carole Lombard.

Leslie Banks, well known for his appearances in "The Man in Possession," and more recently "Springtime for Henry," will make a motion picture in Hollywood next month.

David Selznick has secured Mr. Banks for the lead in "The Most Dangerous Game," a picture directed by Mr. Richard Connell's story of the same name.

It Isn't Heaven's Fault If Man Builds His House on the Side of a Volcano

By Robert Quillen

The Chinese farmer has built in one corner of his field a small temple made of clay and within it has established two small figures that are his gods.

He dresses the gods in new paper robes once a year and burns incense before them to win protection against drought and flood and to insure a generous harvest.

His faith is absolute—while he is blessed with good fortune. But when the earth is parched or covered with flood waters, he accuses his gods of treachery or begins to doubt their power. He neglects them, or perhaps, made bold by desperation, spits on them as he passes the little temple.

Peculiar heathen! Yet, after all, not unlike the people of Christian lands.

The superstitious white man forgets his God when times are good and turns to Him with supplications and reproaches when trouble comes. He regards success as a virtue and prosperity as heaven's acknowledgment of his righteousness; and when his folly or want of prudence brings its natural reward, he cries to heaven: "Why hast thou forsaken me?"

Success is the result of his own merit; failure the fault of his God. It would be funny if it wasn't blasphemous.

But, you say, if God is loving and merciful, how can He permit the innocent to suffer and the righteous to endure loss?

The answer is that rain falls on the just and the unjust. There must be order in the universe, as in a manufacturing plant, and order requires laws.

Natural laws, wise and necessary, cannot be changed to humor the individual. The individual must adjust himself to them.

Is God at fault if lightning kills a man? That bolt of lightning struck when and where it did in obedience to law. It was the inevitable result of causes that preceded it. The scheme of nature required it to strike in that spot.

But no law of nature required the man to be there. He moved of his own will. If he had kept away, the destined bolt would have done him no injury.

Heaven did its part when it gave man wit enough to put up lightning rods.

Righteousness is obedience to law—not a method of bribing heaven to set aside the law for your benefit.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 25.—The feud is on between temperament and production in Hollywood.

Josef von Sternberg, on his way east to bring matters to an issue, seeing that he has walked out on his studio when they decided to make some changes in the financial picture that he was about to direct.

"We shall sue Josef von Sternberg immediately to the full extent of our rights in law and equity," says B. P. Schuyler, Paramount executive.

"Mr. von Sternberg has made a clean-cut exit. He has been quoted as saying that it is a question of whether a director should have to make a picture of a story he doesn't like."

"We, therefore, have had the test forced upon us to determine whether employees drawing large sums weekly are, in fact, employees or can do as they please."

"If we believe that in these trying times in the industry, and in the whole world's economic structure, we should find a new direction, we should find it."

Wallace, one of our finest directors, has been assigned to direct Miss Dietrich in a picture, and she shall be notified accordingly.

"If I meet with the president under Mr. Wallace's direction, we shall immediately take all legal steps to protect our full rights."

Naturally Hollywood is intensely interested in the outcome of this dispute, the settlement of which without doubt will set a precedent for future temperamental flare-ups.

Arguments pro and con are being offered, with most people betting that it will be a studio victory this time.

"Why not have a sliding wage scale," says a certain executive, "so that the actors who demand enormous salaries when they achieve popularity shall receive proportionately smaller pay checks when they fail to make good in a picture?"

Which is an idea in these trying times. But one that may be written into contracts as a leveling influence for artists who sometimes get to think themselves indispensable to the studio.

Just to add more trouble to the Paramount situation, it is rumored that Carole Lombard has asserted that she will not appear in "Hot Saturday" saying she doesn't like it and won't appear in it.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

THE ANTIDOTE FOR AUTOINTOXICATION AND ACIDOSIS IS FREE.

Believe it or betray your ignorance of physiology, what really ails the man or woman who thinks he or she is suffering from auto-intoxication or maybe acidosis is suboxidation. I explained what that means in our last confab on the subject. But some wise men say it is necessary to tell a simple truth like that a dozen times before it begins to dawn on your mind that it may be so. That is because you have had to believe a lot of things about health and disease which ain't so. Suboxidation, then, is insufficient combustion of fuel and tissue material in the body, lowered oxygen, poor metabolism. More oxygen is the antidote for the various ills called "auto-intoxication" or "acidosis."

If you are well versed in mail-order pathology and therapeutics you will immediately surmise that the antidote for auto-intoxication or acidosis is deep breathing, and in that you will be dead wrong. It is very simple to get more oxygen by deep breathing, it would be great medicine for what ails you, but that is not possible, as I will endeavor to explain later.

There are numerous means available to the physician for increasing or speeding up metabolism, oxidation, internal combustion, but there is just one way which should concern anyone who wishes to keep well, and that is, I repeat to say, regular daily exercise, work or play. And now comes the question of how to get it.

Let me hasten to add that for those who can afford it the very best kind of daily exercise is walking. Show me a man or woman who abuses his or her body and I'll bet you odds he or she has a good metabolism.

His own announcement of candidacy for the long term Senate seat was contained in the following statement:

"I will be a candidate for the United States Senate for the unexpired term of Senator William J. Harris."

"Every plank of the platform upon which I was elected as governor has been written into law, save in such instances as constitutional amendments were necessary, and all such amendments will be personally answered immediately upon my return from the governors' conference in Richmond, Va., the latter part of this week."

The governor's declaration that he would fulfill his contract with the people of Georgia "by serving as governor every day of the year, for which he elected me, removed any further speculation about the length of time Major Cohen will serve. Under the law, the successful candidate may but is not bound to qualify as soon as the November 8 election returns are certified to the governor."

It is generally expected that the constitutionally mandated amendment to the people by the last legislature for ratification in November, which cuts six months off the two-year term to which the governor is elected, will be adopted. In such event, Russell's term would expire early in January, 1933, and Major Cohen would serve until late in the next year.

Talmadge Sure to Run.

As the governor's choice for the temporary appointment and his own candidacy were made public at the capitol, close friends of Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture, said there was no longer any doubt as to the gubernatorial race for governor. His term as commissioner of agriculture would expire January, 1933, also.

Talmadge himself would not comment on his plans. He said late Monday that he had received many telephone messages and telegrams urging him to become a candidate, and through his office he said Monday poured a stream of politically-minded Georgians. A definite statement is expected from him in the next 48 hours.

It is certain that Talmadge will have opposition. Representative H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, "beat the bush" Saturday by announcing his decision to enter the gubernatorial contest before Governor Russell had removed himself as a candidate. At the same time, he said, he would not ask for the governorship again.

While there was one definite entry in the gubernatorial race, and Talmadge himself was expected to shunt his storm-ridden foe into the proverbial ring, reports were in general circulation that John I. Kelley, assistant attorney-general, would seek the gubernatorial nomination.

Kelley, the gossip has it, has been picked as the man "to head Talmadge off." An appointee of the Russell administration, a member of the executive committee and a delegate to the Chicago convention, he is in the front ranks of the Russell leadership.

At Athens, it was reported that Abt, Nix, prominent lawyer and international director of Rotary, would announce himself as a candidate to succeed Senator Harris. Nix said he would enter the race as soon as he returned to Athens.

GOVERNOR RUSSELL WILL BE FLORIDA STATE ATTORNEY

Candidate for Place in Fall Vote.

Declares Disappointment With Suicide Theory.

I hope I meet with the governor's expectations and that I am able to render service to the state and nation."

In his statement announcing that Major Cohen had been appointed, Governor Russell said: "I am confident that in view of the admitted emergency of the times and the many grave problems confronting the congress now in session at Washington, which affect the welfare of all our people, I feel that an early appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the passing of the late Senator William J. Harris is proper and that such appointment can be made within one week from his passing without offending the proprieties."

The crisis in our national life is such that the man selected to succeed Senator Harris should be thoroughly informed on the many momentous issues which are before the people in Washington, as well as with the needs of our people and the aims and ideals of national democracy.

Feeling that John S. Cohen, national democratic committeeman from Georgia, possesses all of these qualifications, and that he also has a long record of public service, which will be very valuable at this time, I have today appointed him to succeed Senator Harris."

His own announcement of candidacy for the long term Senate seat was contained in the following statement:

Georgia Heroes Of the World War

By Sergeant L. E. Jaekel

(All Rights Reserved.)

WILLIAM R. ARRAITS, first lieutenant, medical corps, attached to the 37th Infantry, 80th Division, American Expeditionary Force, awarded the distinguished service cross for gallantry in action.

He was the first to lead the enemy in the Bois-de-la-Cote, Le Mont, France, September 28, 1918, and near Nantillois, France, October 5, 1918.

Lieutenant Arraits, with his battalion unit, accompanied his aid station within 100 yards of the front line, where he worked all night under continuous fire, giving aid to the wounded. When there was a shortage of stretcher bearers he assisted in bringing in the wounded. Under an intense barrage of shrapnel and high-explosive shells he performed the most devoted service, attending the wounded, working continuously for nine hours until after his unit had been ordered to retire.

Residence at appointment, Clayton.

The publisher began packing at once for the trip, while long-distance calls and telegrams continued to come.

He will arrive in Richmond, Va., about 9 a. m. tomorrow, receive his credentials from Governor Russell, will be here to attend the governors' conference, and then will go to Washington to take his oath of office.

While in Richmond he will receive the congratulations of his only sister, Mrs. Richard H. Russell Jr., who is in the city.

Major Cohen was attending the annual meeting of the Associated Press in Richmond, Va., when he was notified he had been selected by Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. to succeed the late Senator William J. Harris.

"I think it is a very great compliment to the press of Georgia and of the nation," he said. "It also will be a very great responsibility. I hope I can live up to the governor's expectations and that I am able to render some real service to the state and the nation."

Major Cohen's appointment was announced by Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution.

Attack on Pacifist Propagandists Launched by Legion Auxiliary Head

Aware of a widespread effort on the part of organized communists to disseminate pacifist propaganda throughout the United States, the American Legion Auxiliary is turning its attention to a study of such activities with a view to counteracting its effect—particularly in the public schools, it was asserted Monday night by Mrs. J. M. Toomey, president of the Georgia auxiliary.

In an interview at her residence, 13 Peachtree place, N. E., Mrs. Toomey reiterated points outlined in her address Sunday before the Sixth district convention of the American Legion at Macon, in which she vigorously assailed the measure pending in congress known as the Griffin bill, which, if passed, would amend the naturalization laws of the United States to allow aliens to become citizens without the responsibility of bearing arms in America's defense in time of war.

Mrs. Toomey aimed directly at groups of women who, she charged, are being "misled" and influenced by communistic organizations to appear before parent-teacher associations with a plea for complete disarmament of the United States, and who, she further said, are also permeating the activities of their own organizations with policies of pacifism.

Mrs. Toomey, while reluctant to discuss in detail plans of the auxiliary for combating the so-called "red threat," ventured the opinion that the

TEACHERS TO WORK MONTH ON HALF PAY

TAMPA, Fla., April 25.—(AP)—Teachers offered their services for half price for one month, bankers and citizens met the offer and Tampa's city schools will, as a result, continue sessions until June 3, instead of closing May 6 as once announced for lack of finances.

Slow tax collections had caused school trustees to announce the school had insufficient money to operate the last month of the usual nine-month term.

MRS. ARMOR PREDICTS DEFEAT OF DEMOCRAT

Attacks Roosevelt and Says Dry Women Fight Rum, Not Rome.

BALTIMORE, April 25.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt and Albert C. Ritchie, governors of New York and Maryland and aspirants for the democratic presidential nomination, both were attacked before the United Democratic Law Enforcement Clubs of Maryland here today.

Mrs. Mary H. Armor, of Georgia, national organizer of the W. C. T. U., laid down a barrage at the New York executive, declaring that her home state had no preference for him but that "200,000 voters were hanging back to show their real preference in the election."

"They tried to accuse me of being a wet democrat," she said, "but I am a dry woman. I am not fighting rum, but Rome."

"Well, if they put up a wet Protestant this time let's show them we're not fighting religion, but rum," she said.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, president of the National Democratic Women's Law Enforcement League, branded Governor Ritchie as one of the "outstanding nullificationists of the country," and declared that all candidates mentioned by the democratic party were wet and that none would have support of her organization.

A wet democrat was nominated for president in 1928, Mrs. Armor said, and that to elect one in 1932, a wet democrat is nominated in 1932, "they'll have to pick him up with a blotter."

"We've got the vote, I tell you, and they will make a noise when the election comes," the Georgian said. "You've got to remember we don't belong to the democratic party, the party belongs to us."

The speaker declared that Governor Roosevelt was wet and that he had claimed Georgia has shown preference for him by the primary vote. She declared that only 60,000 persons voted in the primary, and that the remaining 200,000 voters in the state were "hanging back" to show their real preference in the general election.

The organization adopted a resolution opposing the presidential candidacy of Governor Ritchie, because of his wet stand.

OCEAN LONGSHOREMEN TIE UP GOTHAM PIERS

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—The greater part of the waterfront was tied up today, with longshoremen charged in ocean liners, as the longshoremen's strike, originally aimed at coastwise companies that cut wages eight cents an hour, spread to the deep sea piers.

The action against the ocean companies resulted from the refusal of the union to permit longshoremen to unload railroad lighters. The union has made no complaint against the deep sea companies, but charges the action against the railroads was punitive to enforce its coastal piers strike.

The trans-Atlantic companies have charged the union with violating its trade agreement, but Joseph P. Ryan, international president, said there seemed nothing to do about it.

SACKETT IS HONORED BY GERMAN UNIVERSITY

TUEBINGEN, Germany, April 25.—(AP)—A rare distinction, the honorary degree of doctor of science from the ancient university of Tuebingen, was conferred today on American Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett in appreciation for the Hoover memorial on the occasion of his departure.

Chancellor Heinrich Brunnig, who suggested the honor, credited Ambassador Sackett with having first suggested the memorial to the German people, and with having been instrumental in securing its passage by the Reichstag.

SEED LOAN DEFENDANTS FACE PERJURY CHARGE

DOTHAN, Ala., April 25.—(AP)—Six Dothan county citizens, defendants in a recent trial on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government through seed loans obtained in 1930, today were arrested on indictments charging them with perjuring themselves in their trials last month.

Those arrested and who posted bond were J. Norton Mullins, solicitor for the twentieth Alabama judicial district; C. C. McArthur, Earl Hammond, Dothan druggist; Leo Esner, Wyatt W. Rollins and Shell Trawick.

All except Trawick posted bond of $2,000, and in his case bail was set at $2,000 in one case and $1,000 in another.

Five witnesses and a seed loan investigator have been called to Columbia, S. C., where a federal grand jury is reported in session.

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 25.—(AP)—C. T. Hargrove, deputy sheriff of Columbus county, today announced he had solved a murder here by the eyes of the victim, and finding the image of the slayer in enlarged reproductions of the photograph.

He displayed photographs in support of his claim.

The official said he obtained the idea from a detective story he read several years ago.

Richard Lawwell, a negro employee of Hargrove's, was the victim. He was found shot to death April 10, with few clues to indicate his slayer.

Hargrove said the enlarged picture showed plainly the image of a man with a mustache.

Graham and Lewis Blanks, another negro, were arrested. Hargrove said both confessed participation in the killing, but the result of a dispute over the affections of a negro.

PROGRESS REPORTED BY CHURCH SECRETARY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 25.—(AP)—Sounding a keynote of progress, Dr. W. F. Quillian, general secretary of the Board of Christian Education of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, submitted his report to members of the board in annual session here today.

The report pointed out that the year just closed covered the second year of a consolidation of three church boards into a single organization, welding the former Sunday school, Epworth League and education board into the Board of Christian Education.

Dr. Quillian said progress was made at all points affected by the merger, and that the period of experimentation had passed. He mentioned reductions in staff and economies effected in administration and said these were possible on account of the consolidation.

The report said the budget under which the Board of Christian Education operated was $101,000 less than the three old boards expended in 1930. The 16 periodicals formerly published by the boards have been reduced to 14, thereby effecting a saving of $50,000 a year, Dr. Quillian pointed out.

During the past summer, the report said, 13 pastors' schools were held with a total attendance of 1,623.

In addition to the central staff and conference officers, Dr. Quillian said, the board has 1,500 teachers and leaders in its denomination-wide system of training schools and pastors' schools, and 172,385 teachers and officials in the Sunday schools.

Wales Again Studies Workers' Conditions

LONDON, April 25.—(UP)—The Prince of Wales departed tonight on another of his famous forays for first-hand information about conditions among the poorest of British workers.

The British heir went first to Newcastle-on-Tyne and was then on to the industrial sections of Wales. He declined to disclose his plans even to high officials, but it was known he intended to make personal inquiries into measures for the alleviation of distress among working families.

Yeast, Copper, Iron Aids Thin Nervous People

Victims of malnutrition, impoverished blood, and a generally weak, rundown condition of health are immeasurably benefited by the recent discovery that copper possesses wonderful power to increase the vital, strength-giving red corpuscles of the blood. When soluble copper is given in scientific combination with yeast vitamins and iron, the upbuilding effect upon the general health is often astonishing. Frequently, the new treatment accomplishes in a few days what formerly took weeks, or even months, of tedious treatment.

Thor's Vitamin Compound of yeast vitamins, iron, and copper, begins its work by promoting an increase in the strength-giving, disease-resisting red corpuscles of the blood, toning and invigorating the intestinal tract, correcting digestive disturbances, and restoring the appetite for healthful, nourishing food. The nervous system is strengthened by nature's own method of improved circulation and increased metabolism. Thin, nervous, under-nourished people usually show a gratifying gain in weight.

You need no longer suffer from a weak, tired-out feeling, lack of strength, nervousness, indigestion, acidity of stomach and system, malnutrition, impoverished blood, constipation, sleeplessness, and the exhausted feeling of a run-down, depleted system. Thor's Vitamin Compound of yeast vitamins, iron, and copper often accomplishes a great improvement in a few days.

It is benefiting thousands of people right here in this city, and is sold by all druggists for only 50 cents, with the positive guarantee that if you do not show a gratifying gain in health in one week your money will be cheerfully refunded.—(adv.)

SCIENTISTS FIND ENERGY OF EARTH IS NOT LESSENING

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—Cosmic rays, mysterious forces from outer space, were pictured today before the National Academy of Sciences as bombarding the earth with enormous energy up to 500,000,000 volts.

It is new evidence, some scientists believe, that the universe will "live forever" and is not "running down."

First direct measurement of the energy of the cosmic rays, indicating they have this giant power, and evidence that it is sufficient to smash the nucleus of the atom was announced by Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. Carl D. Anderson, of the California Institute of Technology.

The new measurements of the power of cosmic rays shows they are probably photons, or high-powered particles of light, Dr. Millikan said. He believes they also are new evidence that the cosmic rays are being created out in space, to replace matter that "evaporates" in the form of tradition. Some scientists hold the opposite idea: That no new matter is being created, and that the universe will end in the "heat death" when everything has turned into radiation.

Dr. Millikan said he and Dr. Anderson had photographed the smashing of the nucleus, or heart, of an atom by cosmic rays. The impact threw off "chips" in the form of positive and negative bits of electricity.

The hundredth anniversary of the electrical discoveries of Joseph Henry, first secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who unearthed the principles of much modern electrical knowledge, was celebrated by the academy tonight.

COURT FIGHT SEEN OVER FALLON FILM

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 25.—(AP)—A legal battle was shaping today over the motion picture, "The Mouthpiece," said to be based on the life of the William F. Fallon, one of New York's most brilliant criminal lawyers.

Fallon's daughter, Ruth, 18, has sued the manager of the theater, Perry Spencer, for criminal libel. She also seeks to suppress the picture, made by Wa. or Brothers, Miss Fallon's mother, who said the picture reflected improperly on her father.

LEAPING FOR WAGER BRINGS DEATH TO HEIR

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 25.—(AP)—A wager, sportingly made on his youthful prowess, brought death to Harvard Tuckerman Elkins, of Philadelphia, 20-year-old Harvard sophomore, and son of one of America's wealthiest and socially prominent families.

His father, William M. Elkins, prominent financier and philanthropist, came to Cambridge by a chartered special train, but arrived too late to see his son alive.

The youth succumbed yesterday to septic poisoning from a comparatively slight leg injury received eight days ago when, attempting to leap over a fence that he bet with his companion, William Delano Robbins Jr., of Washington, D. C., he lost his balance and was slashed by an iron picket.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—Edward L. Doheny, wealthy California oil man, today asked the United States board of tax appeals to reconsider $103,798 income tax deficiency assessed against him in 1929.

Doheny contended the commissioner of internal revenue erred in adding to his income in 1929 dividends and interest amounting to $518,802 from a trust he established in 1926 for his five grandchildren.

OUSTED FRENCH BACK AT POSTS IN GERMANY

Quiet Again Reigns After Outbreak of Feeling Along Border.

METZ, France, April 25.—(UP)—French customs officials were escorted back into a Saar Basin city today after being driven out by German demonstrators during a clash that arose out of Sunday's state elections in Prussia.

The outbreak in the frontier district—where Franco-German hostility frequently has caused tension—threatened serious developments last night, but probably will be concluded by a diplomatic expression of regret.

The demonstration occurred at Breuselbach, where French customs officers seized a German automobile driver suspected of smuggling.

Election enthusiasm was at a high pitch among the German nationalists and a crowd of 150 demonstrators, shouting "Long live Hitler!" invaded the customs office and forced the officials to release the suspected smuggler.

Wales Again Studies Workers' Conditions

LONDON, April 25.—(UP)—The Prince of Wales departed tonight on another of his famous forays for first-hand information about conditions among the poorest of British workers.

Yeast, Copper, Iron Aids Thin Nervous People

Victims of malnutrition, impoverished blood, and a generally weak, rundown condition of health are immeasurably benefited by the recent discovery that copper possesses wonderful power to increase the vital, strength-giving red corpuscles of the blood. When soluble copper is given in scientific combination with yeast vitamins and iron, the upbuilding effect upon the general health is often astonishing. Frequently, the new treatment accomplishes in a few days what formerly took weeks, or even months, of tedious treatment.

Thor's Vitamin Compound of yeast vitamins, iron, and copper, begins its work by promoting an increase in the strength-giving, disease-resisting red corpuscles of the blood, toning and invigorating the intestinal tract, correcting digestive disturbances, and restoring the appetite for healthful, nourishing food. The nervous system is strengthened by nature's own method of improved circulation and increased metabolism. Thin, nervous, under-nourished people usually show a gratifying gain in weight.

You need no longer suffer from a weak, tired-out feeling, lack of strength, nervousness, indigestion, acidity of stomach and system, malnutrition, impoverished blood, constipation, sleeplessness, and the exhausted feeling of a run-down, depleted system. Thor's Vitamin Compound of yeast vitamins, iron, and copper often accomplishes a great improvement in a few days.

It is benefiting thousands of people right here in this city, and is sold by all druggists for only 50 cents, with the positive guarantee that if you do not show a gratifying gain in health in one week your money will be cheerfully refunded.—(adv.)

SCIENTISTS FIND ENERGY OF EARTH IS NOT LESSENING

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—Cosmic rays, mysterious forces from outer space, were pictured today before the National Academy of Sciences as bombarding the earth with enormous energy up to 500,000,000 volts.

It is new evidence, some scientists believe, that the universe will "live forever" and is not "running down."

First direct measurement of the energy of the cosmic rays, indicating they have this giant power, and evidence that it is sufficient to smash the nucleus of the atom was announced by Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Dr. Carl D. Anderson, of the California Institute of Technology.

The new measurements of the power of cosmic rays shows they are probably photons, or high-powered particles of light, Dr. Millikan said. He believes they also are new evidence that the cosmic rays are being created out in space, to replace matter that "evaporates" in the form of tradition. Some scientists hold the opposite idea: That no new matter is being created, and that the universe will end in the "heat death" when everything has turned into radiation.

Dr. Millikan said he and Dr. Anderson had photographed the smashing of the nucleus, or heart, of an atom by cosmic rays. The impact threw off "chips" in the form of positive and negative bits of electricity.

The hundredth anniversary of the electrical discoveries of Joseph Henry, first secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, who unearthed the principles of much modern electrical knowledge, was celebrated by the academy tonight.

Before her marriage she was Miss Gertrude Gregory, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Grant Gregory, of a leading New York family.

For more than 30 years Mrs. Pugh had taken an active interest in church and charity work. She was a charter member of the North Avenue Presbyterian church and was corresponding secretary of the Atlanta Child's home. DRIVE IS PLANNED TO IMPOUND DOGS NOT VACCINATED

Monday was a bad day for dogs. Under an agreement reached in Mayor James L. Key's office every member of the health department will become a "dog inspector" to impound dogs that have not been vaccinated against rabies and licensed.

Heretofore, the inspection of dogs has been under the division of city clerk, but with the added force of the health division, it is expected that the number of dogs inoculated this year will reach the 10,000 mark, as contrasted with about 2,000 for previous years.

The move was taken as a protection for children and the public generally. The drive will begin about May 15. Dogs can be vaccinated for $1 each and the certificates of inoculation, when presented to the city clerk, will entitle the holder to a license on payment of another $1.

Products of Blind Craftsmen Displayed in Arcade Exhibition

The fifth district chapter of the Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind, Monday opened an exhibit in the Peachtree Arcade of various products made by blind workers. The exhibit will continue during the week. The chapter also is soliciting memberships. The cost of an associate membership is $1; active $2.50; supporting $5; sustaining $10, and contributing membership $25.

With the slogan, "The burden of the blind is not their blindness but their idleness," the association sponsors as one of its main activities the Atlanta Community Shop at 364-A Jones avenue, N. W., telephone Jackson 3588.

Previous to the opening of this shop the lot of the blind in Atlanta seemed hopeless. Now nearly 200 blind persons are engaged in profitable work in this shop and make brooms and mats, reset chairs, re-string rackets, and tune pianos.

This shop is in charge of Norman Elsas, R. R. Otis, and Mrs. Frank Lowenstein. Mrs. Harry G. Poole represents the state organization in Atlanta.

In addition to the interesting display of products, blind musicians are heard daily at the exhibit. Austin Buckner, of Nashville, the blind baritone who won third place in the Atwater Kent audition, sings every day at 1 o'clock.

The concert given by Ed Kane, a review of which appears elsewhere, was given for the benefit of the association, and will take the place of the usual campaign for funds.

The public is invited to visit the exhibit in the arcade, where detailed information about the work of the association will be given. Its three leading aims are to prevent unnecessary blindness, to obtain instruction and employment for the blind, and to obtain relief for the aged blind.

Judge Candler To Watch Grandson March in Parade He Formerly Led

When the horses prance by and the bands blare in martial blasts in the Memorial Day parade this morning, one of the most interested spectators will be the man who perhaps has led more parades to honor the Confederacy than any other Georgia citizen.

And at his accustomed vantage point at Five Points Judge John S. Candler, schoolmaster, soldier and jurist, will thrill as only a soldier and a sire of soldiers can thrill at a military spectacle. For in the line of march will be his grandson, Cadet Colonel Asa Warren Candler Jr., commanding the Boys' High school regiment.

It was 49 years ago last March when Lt. Col. John S. Candler led the greatest funeral parade in the history of the state. Governor Alexander H. Stephens had died on March 4, flooding the hearts of the south with grief. Every soldier in the state was called to Atlanta to participate in the march from the old state house at Marietta and Forsyth streets, where the governor lay in state, to Oakland cemetery.

Brilliant, if tattered in various colors, the military of the Empire State of the South lined in parade. At the head of the line of soldiers rode Lieutenant Colonel Candler in his uniform of gray and gold. Napoleonic hat with waving plume, and mounted on a bay steed. Thus began Judge Candler's long service as marshal of memorial parades.

Five days later a train accident cost the gallant soldier both his feet, and on April 26, 1882, his place at the head of the parade was filled by another. The dauntlessness of the true soldier brought him back as marshal of the Memorial Day parade of 1883, and thenceforth until 1898 Colonel Candler led nearly all parades for the Confederacy. During that year he commanded his regiment in the Spanish-American War.

Today the gray-haired soldier will watch with interested and critical military eyes the martial ability of his grandson. Later he and Mrs. Candler will go to West View to place a wreath upon the grave of another soldier—their son, Major Asa Warren Candler, hero of the World War.

It was an affair of charm, climaxed a year spent in reading and study. George Chapin, professor of English at Georgia Tech, made an interesting and scholarly talk about the poet and read short selections from the plays. Mrs. Josephine Burns Higginbotham sang "The Gypsy Trail" and responded to an encore "The Old Refrain." Mrs. B. M. Blackburn gave a rendering of two of her original characterizations of the "Old-Time Mammy" and captivated her audience.

Mrs. Preston Stevens is an Atlanta Junior League who has many times made our organization proud. As a regular contributor to our local, regional and national arts and interests exhibits she has won widespread acclaim, and for several years now her gay black and white drawings and charming silhouettes of children have come to be expected among the pages of the Junior League Magazine. This prize, which also carries with it a cash award of $25, is given every month to the Junior League whose drawing is selected to head the society department, a regular feature of each issue. The Atlanta League is delighted for one of our members to receive this recognition that will prove of such great value to her in the future.

We are also proud of the many new names that have been seen in the magazine this year. In the April number we noticed the signature of Mrs. John Thieson under a book review of "The Golden Isles of Georgia," by Caroline Couper Lovell, which was accompanied by an illustration from the book, a painting by John Lord Couper of "Hopeton on the Altamaha," the home of Mrs. Lovell's grandfather. The book review, together with the picture, made a very interesting page and we congratulate Mrs. Thieson on the success of her first effort.

Tuesday, Fashion Day at Rich's Reminisces---

Since Atlanta's First Memorial Day Parade
Wended Its Way Down Whitehall Street, Atlanta's Best-Dressed Women Have Bought Their Clothes at Rich's

GAY, sad, or reverential . . . the world has always loved a parade! And you may be sure that in 1881, Atlanta turned out in full regalia to watch the stalwart gray regiments sweep down Whitehall street, in the city's first Memorial Day procession of which we have any complete record. Women looked as sweet as flowers in their little round plume-crested hats and bustled taffeta skirts . . . each confident of looking her "Sunday best," because Rich's had outfitted them all, and Rich's, then as now, set the fashion pace in Atlanta.

EVERY year the gallant gray ranks on parade have dwindled. Only Time marches inexorably on. But on every occasion since that far-gone day, when Atlanta has given thought to "making an appearance," Rich's has added new laurels to its crown. When bustles gave way to the morning-glory silhouette and merry widow hat, Rich's was the first to show the new models. When the much-be-ruffled Floradora girl was "all the go," everybody came to Rich's for the newest wrinkles in ruffles. Out of such style prestige, "Tuesday, Fashion Day at Rich's" was born. 64 years of fashion-dependability is a record of which we have reason to be proud.

IN 1932, as in 1881, Atlanta's best-dressed women are still buying their clothes at Rich's.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Peace Declared

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: He Speaks for Himself

STATION L-O-V-E BY CRAIG CARROLL

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Judy Allison had been in Chicago six months without finding a job. Richard Mason, radio announcer at WAOA, got her a job as a week talking position at his studio on W. Jackson. Judy, who wanted the position, got it. But her salary was not as high as she had hoped for. "You got away with it this time. But you'll wish you hadn't," she said to Judy. Judy spoke to Elton Day, continuity writer, who, without her knowledge, arranged for the position to result in Judy's favor. He answered mysteriously and intimated that Dick Mason might be blamed. Dick had told Judy he loved her but couldn't ask her to marry him as he had dependent relatives to support. Day also had fallen in love with Judy and told her so. He got her a year's contract for $100 a week. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

There was no answer. Dick Mason, depending on Judy Allison, deeply in love with her, eager to help, felt now that she had tricked him, if not intentionally, still cruelly. That she had lost his job for him, made him proud of his honesty as of nothing else. That he might not find another job. The doorbell rang. "That's Billy, I can tell!" Elsie jumped up, pushed hard on her hair, tried to twist it up into some sort of smoothness, gave up, shrugged her shoulders with comical resignation, and disappeared. And in a moment Judy heard her calling. "Judy! It's Billy, all right. Come down! Hurry!"

Judy had an insane desire to about "No," to refuse to face what she knew was inevitable. Must she listen to any more? Must she head still more completely what she had done to Dick Mason? Yes. She must. People like her didn't run away from the results of their own mistakes. They faced it out. So she squared her shoulders and went to hear what Billy Townsend had to say. Which was little. He was the same shock-haired, unbecomingly radio man she remembered. But with a difference. Oddly, it took a long time for Judy to realize the difference. Gold teeth did not show. The wide mouth was not smiling. Grimaces sat uncomfortably on the face that was meant to grin, but there was no grin on Billy Townsend's face now. "Hello," he said curtly.

Then he turned back to Elsie. "It's all off, Elsie. I'm one of the army." "You lost your job, too?" "Yes." "But didn't you explain—" "Hah! Explain?" he laughed. "Explain what? When they won't listen it doesn't do any good to talk. I'm bounced. I'm through. I'm out on my ear. I'm a crooked operator and there's no job for crooked operators. Or for crooked announcers. Tell the people in charge exactly what did happen. "Dick—Dick isn't—" "Oh, he isn't, eh? But everybody says he is. And that's the same thing." "It isn't. Because I'm to blame. Even if I didn't know what was happening until after the fact, and I'm going down right now and tell the people in charge exactly what did happen. "Go ahead," Billy said. "And see what it gets you."

"Judy!" Elsie called. But Judy did not answer. She was already out of the house. A taxi cab, she told the driver where to go, she said, "Hurry! Hurry!" She sat back in the cab, eyes closed, breath coming hard. And the taxi cab jounced, stalled, waited interminably for red lights to change. The car stopped in front of the building and Judy, blindly tugging bills from her pocketbook, gave the driver a bill that made him start, gulp.

She said to the superior young woman at the desk, "I want to see the manager." "What manager?" "Whoever's in charge of the announcements." "He's not in. Gone for the day." "Then I want to see whoever's over everybody else." "He's gone, too. It's Sunday, you know." "Then I've got to go to his home to see him. What's his address?" "We don't give out home addresses." "But—" "Sorry. Can't help you about that. You're sure you don't want to see somebody else?" "Who?" "Mr. Mason, maybe?" The girl smiled shyly. "Mr. Mason? He's here? Why—" "Yes. Over there in the announcements' room. He's just getting ready to leave. Wait. I'll have a page call for him. Waiter, ask Mr. Mason to come in for a moment. Miss—What is the name, please?" "Allison, Judy Allison. And tell him it's important. Very important, please!" "Yes'm."

The boy disappeared and Judy waited. The minutes dragged. The boy reappeared. "Sorry, miss. He said he's got to catch a train. Got no time to talk. Told me to give you this." He extended a folded bit of paper. And, oblivious to grinning page boy and amused attendant, Judy read what Dick Mason had written. Which was this much only: "There's nothing for you or me to say. I don't blame you. After all, it's your job to get ahead as fast and as far as you can. Nobody else matters. So let's not talk about it. Good-by."

Judy let the paper fall from her trembling fingers. Then slowly she picked it up again, carefully folded it, put it in her handbag. It was the first note Dick Mason had ever written to her. She was very sure that it was also the last.

She found Elsie waiting, alone. "Billy's gone," said Elsie. "Dick called up and Billy said he'd meet him somewhere. Wouldn't tell me where they're going. Out of town, I guess. Something about Cleveland, maybe. I know Billy said Dick had an offer down there and he thought he could get on, too. Not good as here, maybe. But he's got to have a job. Billy's got money saved up and he said he'd stake Dick to some, but from what I heard I guess Dick wouldn't take it. Only they're both gone."

Gone. Gone where? Gone forever. Of course. Of course, Judy Allison. The man you love—and you know it, now—the man you love is gone, believing you lied to him, believing you were so small, so petty, so infinitely selfish, that you could sacrifice him to tell him. Kept lying to myself. Believing you let him suffer because you cared more about his enemy than about him, in spite of what you said with words and with your eyes, in spite of what he had told you. Believing everything but the truth. "Elsie, he was right?" "Who was right?" "Dick. I didn't tell him the truth. He had a right to know. He trusted me. And I knew what Elton Day did. And didn't say anything to Dick about it. Didn't have courage enough to tell him. Kept lying to myself. Putting it off. Just because—I don't know why. I don't know why at all. But Dick was right."

"Of course he was." "Somehow," Judy wished Elsie hadn't said that. It's all right to abuse yourself, to load blame and reproach on your own shoulders; it's not so pleasant when you have one friend left to hear that friend agreeing with you in your abasement. Then she caught herself and she hated herself for the thought. She deserved what- ever Elsie or Dick or Billy Townsend thought or said. Not because she'd meant to do any harm, but because her very simplicity, her lack of cleverness and directness and courage, had caused trouble. "Elsie, isn't there any way to reach Dick?" "Not that I know of. Except—" "Except what?" Judy demanded anxiously. "Well, I told Billy the absolute truth. He didn't believe me at first, but I made him believe me before I got through. I'm no woman to be talked down, Judy. I made him listen even if he didn't want to. And he promised me he'd try to tell Dick just what you and I said."

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—

The bond market drifted into slumber today and, although the averages gave way fractionally, there was no appreciable drying up of offerings.

Sales totaled $6,310,000, par value, the smallest volume for a full session since August 3, last year.

The United States government list was somewhat easy at the start while traders digested yesterday's treasury auction results.

Afterward, the listed issues advanced moderately and most of them closed slightly above Saturday figures.

Most corporate bonds indicated little more than an extremely tight feeling. Gains of fractions to 2 or more points on the part of railroad transactions were recorded by some lines of Atchafalaya, Pennsylvania and Wabash.

Softness was displayed by bonds of Baltimore and Ohio, and Southern Railway.

Loans of American Telephone, and some of the oils were inclined to be steady. International Telephone weakened.

Kreuger & Toll 5s rallied. The Germans were moderately higher, as were the Japanese.

Highlights of Wall Street

BY CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, The News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The small volume of dealings in the stock market today and the unimportance of the net changes in most stocks reflect the general desire of investors and speculators to await definite developments, among which is the dividend action on the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation.

The street also is desirous of learning the contents of the new tax bill formulated by the senate. According to reports provisions of the new tax measure are favorable from the viewpoint of the financial district.

The street has learned that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will have something favorable to announce with respect to its attitude toward railroad applications for loans, the proceeds from which are to be used for improvements.

Necessitous liquidation appeared again in the early part of the day, with the exception of Steel common, failed to result in any new low figures for STEEL DIVIDEND.

The new low record established by Steel common reflects the general belief in the street that the directors of the corporation tomorrow will decide to omit the payment of dividends.

Some believe there is a possibility that the corporation may defer the payment due.

There is no question in the street that the regular dividend will be ordered paid on the preferred stock despite rumors of a reduction.

Further selling of Jersey Standard Oil of New Jersey, said to have been inspired by the proposed tariff on oil which, in view of the firm's foreign investments, is not considered a bull argument for that stock.

The proposed increase in the tax on gasoline in New Jersey also is said to have caused some of the selling.

Part of the offering of Standard of New Jersey was reported to have been the chief buyers of the issue.

General Motors held steady throughout the day and moved within a narrow price range despite announcement that the corporation's earnings for the first quarter of this year equaled only 17 cents a share on the common stock, or substantially under the rate at which dividends are being paid.

Business of the day has shown a substantial increase so far in April and interests close to the management believe that earnings for the second quarter will make a most satisfactory showing than those for the first three-month period.

The showing being made in earnings is not expected to ward continuation of the payment of the current dividend rate, which is $2 a share annually.

BUSINESS IN SOUTH EXPECTED TO IMPROVE

Basing his opinion on a study of conditions in various southern states, George P. Strout, president of the Interstate Bond Company, at the annual meeting of the stockholders held Sunday, voiced belief that business in general will improve this year.

"We hope that general business will improve," said Mr. Strout in his annual report to the stockholders. "There are some signs that it will be better. But whether it becomes better or worse during the next year we have no reason to believe that your company will not continue to make progress and that in another year we will be able to report another increase in profits and in worth."

Mr. Strout reported that the business of the Interstate Bond Company has not been in the slightest degree disrupted by the financial upheaval through which we have been passing. He reported that the year has been a company's cash resources to pay in excess of the sums necessary to pay off bonds, a large amount thus being added to the company's reserves.

At the stockholders' meeting all of the officers and directors were re-elected and W. T. Roberts, secretary and treasurer of the company, was elected to membership on the board of directors.

FIRM UNDERTONE

IS SHOWING CURB

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—The curb market stalled in dead center today, with prices holding to a narrow range and trading dwindling to the smallest volume in recent years. The turnover was roughly 30,000 shares.

On the whole, the list developed a fairly firm undertone. Some utilities closed fractionally higher. Electric Bond & Share closed unchanged at 14.

Oil failed to respond notably to a 20-cent-barrel increase in Pennsylvania crude. Gulf slipped off a point in this trading. Imperial was a firm uptick on 1-4.

Industrials were again largely neglected. The Ford issue eased a little. Aluminum Company was steady.

STODDARD HONORED FOR HIS INVENTION

W. J. Stoddard, president of Stoddard Cleaning and Dyeing, has been honored with a membership in the American Society for Testing Materials. The honor was in recognition of his invention of a semi-nonflammable dry cleaning solvent.

Mr. Stoddard was further honored by being appointed on a special technical committee to study the improvement of the specifications of the National Association of Dyeing and Cleaning.

Replying to praise of his usefulness in giving his discovery to the industry when he could have patented it and made money out of it, Mr. Stoddard said:

"If by inducing the industry to use a solvent that will stop the burning of human beings and loss of life, I shall feel that I have served my association."

Mr. Stoddard is well-known throughout the United States and Canada for his activities and work for the National Association of Dyeing and Cleaning, having been president of that association for the years 1923, 1924 and 1925. He resigned to build the model plant and training school for the National Association of Dyeing and Cleaning, Inc., at Silver Springs, Maryland.

When this building was completed, Mr. Stoddard was elected president and chairman of the board of directors, and has been re-elected each year until he is now serving his eighth term as president of the association.

GRAND DUKE FOOLS LINER PASSENGERS LANDS IN CUSTODY

NEW YORK, April 25.—(AP)—A dapper gentleman with a waxed mustache and an engaging manner was hauled unceremoniously down the gang plank of the liner France today while first-class passengers, who had been dining with him as the Grand Duke Michael Romanoff, sat and smoked in the lounge.

He was taken to Ellis Island as a stowaway and identified as Harry F. Gausson, formerly of Hillsboro, Ill., a student at the University of Chicago, charged with embezzlement to society and royalty by discarding and assuming titles at will.

The escape for which he is famed occurred some years ago when, unable to obtain admission to a function for the Prince of Wales, he had invitations engraved and sent them to New York society leaders, bidding them to meet the prince at a reception on Long Island at a vacant lot. He signed the invitations "Prince Obelisk" and many guests appeared.

He was not in evidence on the day of the France when the liner drew away from New York. Ship's officers said he had been in the lounge for the first two nights of the trip and finally obtained a first-class cabin by making a steward believe he had lost his key.

COMMITTEE ENDS

PARLEY QUESTION

WASHINGTON, April 25.—(AP)—The new tax bill's outstanding controversy—that over including tariff duties—was quickly if temporarily settled today by the senate finance committee.

With an amazing burst of speed the group disposed of a dozen import law proposals, agreeing to retain those on oil, coal and copper and rejecting the rest.

However, the tariff fight is to be carried to the floor of the senate and a spirited battle over this issue is in prospect when the committee reports the bill out.

Meeting in executive session to begin a revision of the house bill, the committee found the Democrats in the tariff question at the outset. Senator La Follette, republican, introduced a bill to exclude all imports except those of the United States.

Two Democrats—Connally of Texas, and Gore of Oklahoma—joined the republican majority to keep the revenue bill on the floor of the senate and to prevent its passage.

Choosing one the larger animals, Zanthrogo fastened its lower jaw upon a small metal plate. Another large disc, mounted vertically, was revolved rapidly by a hand crank. A single wire was fixed to a metal plate attached to the base of its skull.

Luckily for Tarzan, one of the courtiers present suggested that Zanthrogo show them his experiment, whereupon the wizard, glad to escape from following the king's silly idea of striking Tarzan, produced a cage of rodents and a complicated arrangement of pegs and cords.

Before his very eyes, Tarzan now saw the rodent shrink rapidly in size while retaining its proportions unchanged! The ape-man leaned far over that he might impress the method upon his memory. The king cried angrily, "Have this fellow sent away at once!" Tarzan was taken to an inner chamber.

KELLY PLACED IN TOUGH SPOT

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 25.—(P) John Sims "Shipwreck" Kelly, the blond Kentucky speedster who won the 100-yard dash at the 1931 southern conference track meet, may be kept out this season by an infected leg.

ence championship dash it is doubtful if his leg will stand up under the speed necessary for Kelly to keep pace with such dash men as Burnett, of Mississippi; Stockwell, of Louisiana State; Galloway, of Georgia Tech; Smith, of Alabama, and Owens, of Georgia.

Kelly has not entered dual meets this season and has done little work, but early in the year he stepped the century in less than 10 seconds. Coach Bernie Shively hopes his star

Sprinter will return to form for the May carnival and perhaps for the Tennessee meet this week-end.

Shively believes Kelly would be one of the best quarter-milers in the country if he would train for this distance. In his two attempts at the 440 Kelly negotiated the distance in under 50 seconds, but the crack football halfback does not fancy the long dash and prefers the 220 and 100.

Ivar Kreuger Seen as 'Easy Mark' For Many Women Extortionists

STOCKHOLM, April 25.—(UP)—The discovery of evidence that many women had extorted money from the late Ivar Kreuger was made known tonight in connection with the police investigation of the private affairs of the Swedish match king.

The police were understood to have found many illuminating letters in the so-called "silent room" in Kreuger's apartment, where he often conducted business affairs of his worldwide enterprises.

These letters showed the industrialist was the object of various extortion plots and that many women were able to collect money from him.

The police also found rubber stamps which were the faked photographs of well-known persons. Previously, it had been disclosed that Kreuger had millions of dollars' worth of forged Italian bonds which he was alleged to have ordered made by a Swedish printing house after writing the signatures himself.

Meanwhile, Mme. Ingeborg Eberth, who was a close friend of Kreuger since childhood, hinted that there were "peculiar features" about the death of the famous industrialist and that it was difficult to determine whether he was actually dead.

Kreuger killed himself in Paris and French police certified his death. Later there were rumors that he was still alive but all such reports proved groundless.

Short Selling Disclosures Come as Shock to Capital

Bearish Activities of Heads of Corporations Looked on With Disfavor in Washington.

BY MARK SULLIVAN. WASHINGTON, April 25.—Disclosures by the senate committee investigating short selling have an effect of shock on Washington. It is shared by persons throughout the country in the mind. The emphasis of the investigation has now passed from short selling to a broader phase of ethics.

If there is to be public understanding of the new aspect of the investigation, it will be necessary to bear in mind certain distinctions. One has to do with persons. Short selling by individuals whose business is the administering of their private fortunes and who have no relation of trust to others is judged separately.

In spite of widespread public prejudice against short selling by any one, many persons in the business and financial world regard it as legitimate and even useful when limited to men thus situated and done under normal conditions. Some who do it are highly minded men.

In the last two days of the senate investigation, however, it was brought out that short selling of all the corporations in which they are directors, these men have a relation of trust to hundreds of thousands of stockholders. Some of the corporations are financial and therefore call for a peculiarly high sense of fiduciary responsibility. In a broader sense their relation to the public is that of trustees. By the number and importance of the corporate officers they hold, they are in the position of pillars of the country's business and credit.

What the coming phase of the investigation will deal with is the propriety of selling short in an organized market. It is not clear from some of the preliminary questioning last week dealt with this phase, it did not bring out the degree of feeling which the senators are expected to have with reflection over the week-end.

Some of the questions last week aimed at bringing out whether the corporation had short stocks of all the corporations in which they were directors. This would be a lack of complete fidelity to trust under ordinary circumstances, every lawyer knew and every layman feels instinctively. To bring out whether this was done, directly or indirectly, will be an objective of the investigation.

Some of the future investigation will try to find out whether it is possible for a director in 20 corporations, to have short sold stocks of all the corporations in which he has a relation of trust. A director of a bank or an investment trust selling short a large number of different stocks can hardly avoid doing harm to his own institution which either owns or has loaned money on various stocks. Aside from that, a man who is a pillar of the country's financial structure can hardly be a short seller of 40,000 to 50,000 shares of miscellaneous stocks and at the same time maintain a relation of trust to the country's credit structure. The answer can be found by considering the mental attitude of a man in this position.

Does he wish for unfavorable developments which will cause securities to go down and thereby make personal profit for himself? This brings up the second distinction. There is a distinction between short selling in normal times and short selling during the past few months. What caused the investigation to be started is the present investigation was short selling under recent conditions. When America a few months ago was fighting a defensive war, for its economic life and its credit structure; it was felt that selling securities short at such a time amounted to giving aid to the enemy.

As respects this question and as respects short selling by men who are directors of many financial and other corporations, practically all of Washington has one answer. If the new investigation gives material to radicals who would take drastic action about many aspects of finance. At the same time some of the disclosures are so indefensible as to deserve the respect of the power to resist radical action.

POLICE SEEK WOMAN IN CHARLOTTE HANGING

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 25.—(AP)—A search was being made through the underworld today for the woman in whose clothes the body of Albert Rudisill, 25-year-old shipping clerk, was clad when it was found hanging from a rafter in a warehouse here today.

The detective, F. N. Littlejohn, chief of Charlotte's Detectives, said the clothes had been identified as those of a woman of underworld character and that she was being sought for questioning. He did not reveal her name.

The detective said the possibility of the woman hanging by her neck from a woman's cloak which had been twisted into a rope, killed himself, had been discarded.

It was murder all right," he said. He expressed belief Rudisill was killed elsewhere and the body carried to the warehouse where it was found in a woman's cloak which was hanging from the ears and heavy goggles on the eyes. Death apparently was due to strangulation.

Rudisill was wearing his own suit when the body was found. His other clothing, except his undergarments, were hanging in a closet in the warehouse.

The detective said the goggles were ordinarily used at the warehouse for handling chemicals. Rudisill was employed there.

SEABURY LAUNCHES ATTACK ON WALKER

Assemblymen Mumble Protests as Investigator Mentions Name Casually.

NEW YORK, April 25.—(UP)—While the democratic members of the House of Representatives twitted the indignation at the proceedings, Samuel Seabury today launched his indirect attack upon the political and administrative career of the effervescent James J. Walker, mayor of New York.

The first casual mention, by name, of the man who will become the centennial orator at the dedication of the Tammany-controlled city brought mumbled protests from Assemblymen Louis Cuvillier and strident remarks from Senator John McEvilly, who advised Seabury that "everybody is Jimmy Walker's friend."

Seabury smiled sweetly at the Tammany committee members and remarked that the mayor's friends had nothing to become excited about—yet. Then, with his usual placid bearing still unruffled, he plunged into a discussion of the political career of Walker.

One of the most urgent supporters of the franchise was James J. Walker, who was about to go into office as mayor.
